

NOISY WELCOME

New Year Given its Usual Greeting.

Services, Watch Parties and other Events Take Place in Paducah.

NEW YEAR CHANGES

New Year was given a noisy with its advent at midnight. Many people were sitting on the first glimpse of 1904, who were not, were awakened to the realization of the fact that old year had given place to the new by the vociferous salute.

Watch night services were held at the First Cumberland Presbyterian church and at the Union Rescue mission. Ball was given at the fraternal building by the local Masons and Odd Fellows' lodges. Mrs. Dorian's private school had a watch party and many other similar entertainments were given.

Negro Suspect Arrested and Held for Murder.

Few Arrests Made by the Police as a Starter for 1904.

OVER 200 ARRESTS LAST MONTH

Judge Sanders held no police court this morning on account of it being New Year's Day.

There are several persons in the city who were arrested and held for murder. Those arrested since yesterday are Joe Williams and Ben Jones and Pat Burns, charged with fighting and James Doolin and Charles Burns, boys, charged with the theft of a bicycle from the Western Union Telegraph company messenger service.

Officer T. J. Moore left last night for Lexington with George Pearl, a boy sent to the reform school. The policeman who makes the arrest which the boy is convicted, gets to take him to the reform school, which means about $75.

G. W. Shaw, a negro, was arrested this morning by Officers Hurley and Owen on suspicion of being wanted at Brownsville, Tenn., for murder.

The police received a letter this morning from the authorities at Brownsville saying that Shaw was residing here and giving a minute description of him. The officers began searching and soon found his man. Shaw does not deny being at Brownsville last summer but denies that he is the guilty person. He was locked up to await the instructions of the Brownsville police. It is thought that an officer from Brownsville will come here to identify Shaw.

The police report complete shows the following for the past month: Breach of the peace 53, breach of ordinance 50, drunk and disorderly 15, vagrancy 5, disorderly conduct 11, drunk 18, concealed weapons 3, petty larceny 8, false swearing 1, suspect 4, snuffing gaming 1, gaming 9, robbery 2, horse stealing 1, malicious assault 1, grand larceny 1, malicious cutting 2, housebreaking 4, obtaining money under false pretenses 5, malicious shooting 4, malicious assault with intent to kill 1, immorality 6, grand total 204.

Mr. J. W. Baird, of Louisville, an expert accountant, returned home last night after a business trip to the city. He is the accountant for the bond company which furnishes bond for Treasurer Wm. Krans and Auditor Alex Kinkaid and he paid the two officials a visit, but did not go over the books.

Last night the fire department was called to Second and Kentucky Avenue to box No 31 in response to a false alarm. Some one just at midnight, as the bells and whistles were blowing, turned in the alarm and if Chief Woods finds out who did it, he will procure a warrant and prosecute him.

The police found a horse and buggy at Twelfth and Trimble streets last night. The buggy was that of a farmer, being very muddy and in the small bed, beer, whiskey and other liquors were found.

H. B. Duncan who was yesterday held over by U. S. Commissioner A. Gardner on the charge of passing a counterfeit $20 bank note, is still in jail unable to give the $1,000 bond fixed by the court.

Dr. Graves today reported to police headquarters that his horse had been stolen or strayed away.

ENTERTAINED LAST NIGHT.

Mrs. J. Campbell Flournoy entertained at cards last night in honor of Miss Helen Decker and Miss Maule Cobb, at her home at Seventh and Broadway.

Dr. J. R. Grogan has returned from Murray where he spent the holidays.

GLOOMY BEGINNING OF THE NEW YEAR

Mighty Chicago Was Quiet for First Time in History Last Night.

No Change Today in the Number of Dead Many Yet Unidentified in Morgue.

Chicago, Jan. 7.—For the first time since Chicago has possessed bells to peal, whistles to shriek and horns to blow, the old year was allowed to silently take its place in history and the new year permitted to come with no evidence of joy at its birth. In an official proclamation issued yesterday by Mayor Carter H. Harrison, he made the suggestion that the usual New Year's eve celebration for this time be omitted. The idea found a ready response in the hearts of the people.

Ordinarily on New Year's eve the streets of the city are filled with merry-makers, but last night the only throngs to be found were those around the morgues; ordinarily numbers of fashionable restaurants in the heart of the city are filled with light-hearted revelers. Last night these places were comparatively deserted, and some of them closed entirely.

THE SECOND TIME.

For the second time in her life the city of Chicago has been stricken to the heart. The blow has fallen almost as heavily upon strangers as citizens. There is hardly a town within a radius of 100 miles whose people are not directly or indirectly interested in the piles of dead or in the injured.

It is generally accepted that the most accurate estimate is 564. This number will be increased, as there are people in the hospitals who cannot survive. It is believed however, that the total number of dead will not exceed 575.

Including the missing it is estimated that the total number of casualties is at the present time approximately 1,000.

There are among the missing the names of many who are at their homes, and of some who were not at the theater at all. When the names of the dead who are still to be identified have been subtracted from the list of missing it is probable the extent of the catastrophe will be fully revealed.

THE CAUSE IN DOUBT.

There has since the fire been an animated discussion as to the cause. Accounts differ widely. The theatrical people are practically a unit in declaring that the fire started with an explosion, and in this they are flatly contradicted by scores of people in the audience, who declare that they saw the fire creeping along the edge of the curtain for several minutes before the explosion took place.

The best evidence obtainable is to the effect that fire was caused by the sparks from an arc light striking the edge of the drop curtain, but the actual fact, however, will not be known until after the conclusion of the coroner's inquest.

Although the Iroquois theater was undoubtedly the safest theater in Chicago the city building department had not strictly enforced one or two sections of the building ordinances.

William Curran, a building inspector, was in the theater only a few moments before the catastrophe and went away saying that everything was in good condition. The deputy commissioner went to the theater to make an inspection. Upon returning to the city hall he said:

"The theater and its management were strictly within the law. I will not go into details until I have completed my report."

All yesterday telegrams of sympathy to the people of Chicago and offers of aid poured in by telegraph upon the mayor. He announced last night:

"I have received many offers of aid. It may be that before we get through this a few persons will be found to have been put to need, but Chicago will be able to give that aid herself. Most of those killed and injured, now identified, can be abundantly cared for."

FROM BERLIN.

Among the telegrams of condolence received from abroad by the mayor are the following:

Berlin—Mayor Harrison: "Wish to express deepest sympathy on account of terrible catastrophe at Iroquois theater. Please let me know of missing and if some of my acquaintances among them. What a terrible beginning of New Year many good citizens of Chicago will have."

"HENRY OF PRUSSIA."

LONDON SYMPATHIZES.

London, Dec. 31.—A message which lord mayor of London Sir James T. Ritchie transmits through the associated press voices the consternation and sympathy which prevails throughout the British metropolis over the disaster.

NEW YORK'S MESSAGE.

New York, Dec. 31.—Mayor Low sent the following telegram: "Carter Harrison, Mayor of Chicago: 'The city of New York and all our people send heartfelt sympathy to Chicago and especially to those so sorely afflicted by yesterday's calamity. Signed: "SETH LOW, Mayor,"

SAFE AS ANY.

The appliances required by law for preventing loss of life are all said to have been in place, but they failed to work.

"If the Iroquois was not safe there is no use trying to build a fireproof theater," declared officials of the building department when news of the disaster reached the city hall. Commissioner Williams got out the plans to show they complied with the building laws.

The plans provide for an asbestos fire curtain to separate the stage from the auditorium, and the curtain was in place as the law provides. Had it come down promptly when the fire was first discovered the people in the audience would have been safe, but it was not down soon enough.

After the blaze had got into the orchestra seats it was let partly down, was the information of the building inspector, who made the investigation. Then, it is claimed, the machinery would not work.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT OF FIRE.

On the audience's left—the stage right—a line of fire flashed straight up. It was followed by a noise as of an explosion. According to nearly all accounts, however, there was no real explosion, the sound being that of the fuse of the "spot" light, the light which is turned on a pivot to follow and illuminate the progress of the star across the stage.

This light caused the fire. On this all reports of the stage folk agree.

The beginning of the disaster was leisurely. The stage hands had been fighting the line of watering flame along the muslin fly border for some seconds before the audience knew anything was the matter.

The stage hands grasped the long sticks used in their work. The men struck savagely. A few yards of the border fell upon the stage and was stamped to charred fragments.

That sight was the first warning the audience had. For a second there was a hush. The singers halted in their lines; the musicians ceased to play.

EDDIE FOY A HERO.

At that moment a strange, grotesque figure appeared upon the stage. The

WILL NEVER FORGET

Man Tells of the Horrible Scene at the Chicago Fire.

He Says He Will Never Go to Another Big Fire As Long As He Lives.

THE IMAGINATION FALTERS

Mr. Wm. Stubbs, an engineer sent here from Chicago to take a run on the Illinois Central, was an eye witness to the harrowing scenes near the Iroquois theater in Chicago day before yesterday. He said this morning as he related his experience to a group of friends here that he will never forget the awful sights, nor will he ever again, if he could live a million years, rush to another big fire.

"I was about four doors from the theater when the fire broke out," he said to a reporter. "I was consequently one of the first to reach the scene. Already much of the death and destruction had been wrought, although it was less than ten minutes after the fire started."

"I saw a well dressed girl about 12 years old prostrate crying for help as I came up. She appeared to be of well-to-do people. She screamed and moaned for aid, having apparently made her escape in advance of the surging, seething, struggling mass of humanity. Just as I reached for her the crowd poured over her and the little life was crushed out. I got sick. By that time the crowd was coming from all directions, and the people were piling out the theater, the living, the crippled and the unconscious with the dead. I saw the police seize one man and attempt to pull him out, but they got only his arm. Horror was depicted on every face."

"An effort was made to separate the dead and the injured, and carry the former away and attend the latter, but in the haste and excitement many who were only unconscious were piled up with the dead, and could be seen to kick and struggle as the vans moved off with them. They were suffocated no doubt before the wagons had proceeded very far."

"The greatest mixup was where the balcony stairs joined the lower floor of the theater. Hundreds were piled up. They seethed down the stairs of the balcony and in addition to crushing each other, piled down on top of the people who were making their escape through the same exit from the lower floor. I saw holes 15 feet deep, some of them actually straight up on their heads. Moans came from the ghastly heaps, and occasionally the pale, bloody faces would twitch as the victims returned to consciousness only to feel life gradually crushed out of their helpless bodies. Struggling forms, nude arms and legs that mutely appealed by their spasmodic movements for succor—all these simply froze the blood of the strongest men. I'll never forget it."

"The most remarkable part of it was that the whole thing happened inside of ten minutes after the fire broke out. There is no telling how many of the living were mixed with the dead, and suffocated or crushed to death by being thrown into the cars and wagons under piles of corpses. But of course there were only a few."

Mr. Stubbs is a close observer and his account of the scenes following the disaster is very clear and interesting.

COLORED WOMAN DIES.

"Aunt Mahala" Reed died last night at her home, Seventh and Harris streets, after a long illness. She was one of the oldest colored women in the city and had worked for various white families in Paducah for the past quarter of a century or longer. Her name has been Martin and several other things, having been several times married, and she leaves a number of children. Coroner Peal was called to issue a death certificate and on investigation learned that death was due to old age. She had worked at times for Undertaker Nance's family for 25 years, and he will give her a good burial.

BULLET FATAL

Man, the Plumber, in an Accident.

Long and Whistling at Bullet Fired By Unlucky Him Down.

SHOT AS AN ACCIDENT

Mr. J. Hannan, a well known and popular plumber, and a brother of Connolly, was shot and fatally wounded last night as the whistles were blowing out the old year and ringing in the new. The shooting was entirely accidental and it is not known who fired the shot.

Mr. Hannan attended the wedding of Mr. Robertson, a fellow plumber, to Katie Schauf, which occurred last night at the bride's residence on Broadway. After the ceremony there was a lunch served. Mr. Hannan and several companions went into the street when the New Year's din began. One man in the crowd had a pistol and another a shotgun. Mr. Hannan was standing by Mr. Wes Reed when he suddenly began to stink down. Mr. Reed ran to his assistance and a hasty investigation showed he was shot in the side, the bullet striking the right hip bone and ranging into the bowels.

Dr. Frank Boyd, Dr. J. S. Troutman, Dr. Hearn and others were summoned immediately after the discovery was made and the injured man conveyed to Mrs. Baumgard's house. The bullet lodged in the bowels and the wound was this morning pronounced fatal.

Mr. Hannan has been conscious the greater part of the time but is in great agony. He says the shooting was accidental and that he does not know who fired the bullet. He came from any weapons handled by his companions or who fired a stray bullet from some one's pocket discharged in the close vicinity. There was much shooting on the same street, and it could not be ascertained who fired the shot.

Marshall James Crow had the theater investigated this morning and officers reported the shooting fatal and no arrests were ordered.

This morning on advice solicitors Mr. Hannan was taken to the railroad hospital where operation will be performed, the removed, this being the saving his life.

WHERE IS CULTON?

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 1.—The question of whether W. C. Culton, charged with being an accessory before the fact to the murder of William Goebel, will answer when his case is called in the Franklin circuit court Monday is much mooted here.

Culton, who has for the past three and a half years been under a $10,000 bond in the Goebel case, was recently charged with having raised witness claims which he bought at the third trial of Caleb Powers. Since that time he has been in Oklahoma, it is said. If he does not appear Monday the bond may be forfeited. Among Culton's bondsmen are his father, an itinerant preacher of Jackson county, and R. E. Hogg, of Booneville, his brother-in-law.

Culton's case is usually called and continued on motion of the commonwealth. It is not believed that he will ever be prosecuted.

LAST WARRANT

PROSECUTIONS AGAINST PADUCAH MAN ALL FALL THROUGH.

The fight against Mr. Ike Friedman's wholesale liquor establishment at Mayfield is now on the wane. Yesterday the last case against him for alleged violation of the local option laws was dismissed. A number of warrants were issued against him some time ago but not a single conviction was secured.

Such establishments under the law may sell whiskey in lots of five gallons or more, local option or no local option, and the courts have held that the person who buys can have the whiskey in one jug or in half a dozen or even more. Those who want to buy liquor there now club together and purchase five gallons and then divide it. The courts have decided that this is legal if the person who makes the purchase is not an agent for the concern selling the whiskey. So long as he is acting solely for the purchaser he is within the pale of the law.

MILLIONAIRE'S POOR STOMACH.

The worn out stomach of the over-fed millionaire is often paraded in the public prints as a horrible example of the evils attendant on the possession of great wealth. But millionaires are not the only ones who are afflicted with bad stomachs. The proportion is far greater among the toilers. Dyspepsia and indigestion are rampant among these people, and they suffer far worse tortures than the millionaire unless they avail themselves of a standard medicine like Green's August Flower, which has been a favorite household remedy for all stomach troubles for over thirty-five years.

August Flower rouses the torpid liver, thus creating appetite and insuring perfect digestion. It tones and vitalizes the entire system and makes life worth living, no matter what your station. Trial bottles, 25c; regular size, 75c. For sale by Dr. Boile, Kalb & Co.

FRIDAY, JAN. 1, 1903.

DAILY THOUGHT.

This for the New Year—all great deeds above—
To hide dark hate beneath the wings of love!

With sigh or song
To walk the way along,
To suffer—and in suffering be strong!
This for the New Year: Though thy steps be led

Lonely unto the graves that hide thy dead,
For all the Night
There shall be gleams of Light And God's own smile shall make the darkness bright!

—Atlanta Constitution.

THE NEW AND THE OLD.

The year 1904 may be one of unprecedented advancement in Paducah.
During the year just passed much has been accomplished, and much might have been accomplished that was not;
but withal the city's growth in area and population cannot be hampered, and her advancement commercially cannot be impeded. She is destined to become great, and the cornerstone to greatness has already been laid.

The year just finished was one of confusion and uncertainty. It was a year of politics and campaigns, and such years are always bad for a city.
We did not know in the beginning whether Paducah was to prosper or stand still, but now we know she is going forward. We have done a great many things and have a great many things yet to do. The people have struck the keynote. They have voted bonds for building miles of brick streets and erecting a new market house and modern city hospital. These will be only beginners. The people of Paducah may be slow to get started but when they do nothing can stop them. They have done their part to start the ball, and it is now up to their representatives in charge of affairs to do the rest.

During the year we have added several substantial manufactures, have witnessed the erection of many new buildings and have begun the paving of several blocks of street in the business part of the city. We have put politics away—or should—for two years at least, and nothing should now be in the way for a most prosperous year.

The Sun has always been for progress, and will aid in every possible way. It has had occasion to differ with public officials in some of their policies, and will in all probability have occasion to differ with them again, but it is for Paducah above everything else. What has been accomplished in the past is nothing to what may be accomplished. Everybody knows the resources and advantages of Paducah, and all that remains to be done is to utilize what we have. Paducah now boasts of one of the finest waterworks plants in the country, of a first class street car system that is far ahead of those in other cities this size, of a good street lighting system, but one that can be improved, of a first class commercial lighting system, of a sewerage system that would be of inestimable benefit to the community if it were only used, by all those who reside in the district, and the best telegraph and telephone service. We have a steam heating system that will improve and expand and become a great convenience to both business men and the residents of the other sections of the city.

or things that go to show that we need not be behind any city.

What has been done during the year past, however, to revert to the old year, is only a forerunner of what can be done. The work already decided on will give us an impetus that ought to carry us forward with great celerity. It will show people the advantage of making a city out of the excellent material at our command. There are a great many things to be accomplished during the New Year that this time next year we should be able to look back upon with pride and pleasure, and we hope to do it.

Paducah needs better fire protection,
a more extensive use of the sewerage system, all the paved streets she can get, less dust and less mud, better sanitation, public parks, and a more loyal devotion to public interests by our public men.

The question of sanitation should come in for at least its proper share of discussion. Last year we practically had no sanitation. Paducah, a city of over 20,000 people, hadn't a single sanitary inspector. The police were deputized to do the work, but they had enough other duties to do to make their sanitary work unsatisfactory, if not impossible. To further assist sanitation we need a law that will compel people in the sewer district to use the sewerage, as they do in other cities. We need a system of disposing of garbage, which is now allowed to lay in the alleys and gutters and yards in the summer time and decay. We need street sprinkling on those streets that are not paved, for dust, in addition to being a public nuisance at best, is a great disseminator of disease. Street sprinkling will save the streets, and the health of the people. With more attention paid to sanitary measures, the city will be better in every way.
The death rate will be reduced and the general health will be improved wonderfully. The importance of these matters cannot be exaggerated. The mayor should devote considerable space in his annual address to the needs of better sanitation. It is more important than rapid growth, the addition of manufactures, the tax rate and everything else, for on it the health, life, and consequently the happiness of the community, depend.

The Sun sincerely hopes the year we begin today will be one of prond prosperity to all. The number of new buildings that will be erected, the extensive public improvements to be made, and the immigration of laborers to the manufacturing centers, indicates that we shall have hundreds of more people a year from today than there are now. We need houses for these laborers, and men of capital can find no better investment than dwelling houses for the newcomers. Every person should take pride in helping in the good work of advancement.
Progress helps all alike. Some possibly more than others, but everybody nevertheless.

In recounting the past year and pointing out the possibilities of the new, The Sun cannot forbear to say that the past year has been the most prosperous in its history, and it is today read by hundreds more people than a year ago. Its business has greatly increased, and it expects a year from now to deserve and to have still greater popularity and prosperity. It has already decided to put in new and more modern machinery and have the best equipped plant in the city, and expects the public as well as the paper to enjoy the benefits of these additional and improved facilities.

The awful holocaust at Chicago will doubtless have its effect on the timid, and tend to keep them away from theaters for a time, but there is no reason it should have such an effect. The same danger—that of panic—has always existed and will always exist so long as there are public assemblies. The principal danger is from people losing their heads. While it may have been impossible for some of those in the Chicago audience to escape, the general opinion is that most of them were victims of their own folly. People at such times seem to forget the exits. They rush for the entrance. Instead of holding back from the crowd, they rush into it, add to the pandemonium and are killed, smothered or suffocated. It is strange that with all the warnings that people get about such things in the course of a life time, some of the oldest and ordinarily the most cool-headed, are the worst panic-stricken in a crisis.
Instead of there being as much danger of such disasters as before, however, there is now less. Extra precautions will be taken in every theatre in the country, if not in the world. The management of them may have learned long years of experience.

SONGS OF THE DAY

DON'T WAIT.

If you've anything good to say of a man,
Don't wait till he's laid to rest,
For the eulogy spoken when hearts are broken
Is an empty thing at best.
Ah! the blighted flower now drooping lonely
Would perfume the mountain side,
If the sun's glad ray had but shone today
And the pretty bud eaped.
If you've any aims to give the poor,
Don't wait until you hear the cry
Of wan distress in this wilderness, Lost the one forsook may die.

houses modern appliances for quickly extinguishing a fire. The people, too, it is safe to presume, will profit by the direful catastrophe. Should a fire break out in a theatre tomorrow, there is less likelihood of a panic than there was a few days ago, because the first thing the people would think of would be the awful result of Wednesday's panic.

St. Louis apparently has one honest man. He has sent out anonymously about $2,000 in bills to various corporations to pay debts he owes, or imagines he owes. The Future Great need not felicitate, however. The man will probably turn out to be crazy.

man was Eddie Foy, chief comedian of the company. Before he reached the center of the stage he had called out to a stage hand: "Take my boy, Bryan, there. Get him out. There by the stage way."

The stage hand grabbed the little chap. Foy saw him dart with him to safety as he turned his head.

Freed of parental anxiety, he faced the audience.

"Keep quiet!" he shouted. "Quiet."

"Go out in order!" he shouted.

"Don't get excited!"

Between exclamations he bent over toward Herbert Dillea, the orchestra leader.

"Start an overture!" he commanded. "Start anything. For God's sake, play, play, play, and keep on playing."

The brave words were as bravely answered. Gildea raised his wand, and the musicians began to play. Botter than any one in the theater they knew their peril. They could look slantingly up and see that the 300 sets of the "Bluebeard" scenery all were ablaze. Their faces wore white, their hands trembled, but they played, and played.

Foy still stood there, alternately urging the frightened people to avoid a panic and spurring the orchestra on.
One by one the musicians dropped hid-die, horn, and other instruments and stole away.

Finally the leader and Foy were left alone. Foy gave one glance upward and saw the scenery all aflame.
Dropping brands fell around him, and then he fled—just in time to save his own life. The "clown" had proved himself a hero.

LOST THE WHOLE FAMILY.

Clinton G. Meeker, a clerk in the registry division of the postoffice, living in the suburbs of Irving Park, has probably lost in the fire his entire family, consisting of his wife, two daughters and two sons. A friend called Mr. Meeker up on the telephone at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and asked him if any of his family had gone to the theater. He answered that so far as he knew none of them had left home. When he reached the house, however, he found only his mother-in-law there.

"Where are Mabel and the children?" he asked.

"They have gone to the Iroquois theater," was the reply.

Today Mr. Meeker had partially identified the bodies of his wife and two daughters. He failed to find any trace of his two sons.

A REMARKABLE INCIDENT.

Some of the most remarkable incidents of the fire were unknown until E. L. Donaldson, one of the actors of the Western Uni-vest of death, unaware that his own wife was among the missing. When he went home he found she had gone to the theater. He hurriedly returned and searched for her through the morgues and in the hospitals, but today had not found the least trace of the missing woman.

WIRE CAUSED IT ALL.

The cause of the "jamming" of the asbestos curtain, considered the cause of the disaster, was explained today by an inspector for the underwriters, who made a tour of the house and found that the wire on which the queen of the aerial ballet flew out over the audience in the second act, held the asbestos curtain and prevented it from being lowered. It was shown by the inspector that the wire on which the most spectacular feature of the show was made practically caused the holocaust.

PRESIDENT'S SYMPATHY.

The following message was received:
"Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—To Hon. Carter Harrison, mayor, Chicago: In common with all our people throughout this land I extend to you, to the people of Chicago, my deepest sympathy in the terrible catastrophe which has befallen."

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

BASEBALL PLAYER ESCAPES
Charles Dexter, of Evansville, Ind., a member of the Boston Baseball club,
and Frank Houseman, the old Chicago second baseman, with their families, occupied a box. Both claimed that but for the presence of mind of Eddie

COLUMBIA

STAR ROUTE STOPPED

One of the Oldest in the District Discontinued Today.

Places Served are Reached by Railroad and the Government Contract called Contract.

MORE MAY FOLLOW THIS YEAR

One of the oldest star routes in the State passed out of existence this morning. It is the route from Paducah to Wickliffe via Maxon's Mills, Woodville and other places in this county and Ballard. For many years this has been a regular mail route. Yesterday was the last trip G. W. Webb, the carrier, will ever make as the government's representative, as today orders were received here to discontinue it.

The reason the route was discontinued is that the towns served are now touched by the new Cairo extension of the I. C., and the mail is carried by the train. This makes it quicker and better, and while the star route contract did not expire until next July, the government cancelled the contract for the remaining time.

It is fully expected that other star routes will be discontinued after July, when new contracts go into effect. Since the contracts were let four years ago many changes and improvements have been made in the mail service in sections covered by the star routes, and with river, rail and rural free delivery service, many of the star routes are now needless extravagances, and will in all probability be discontinued after the present contracts expire.

Mr. Tom Morton, of Chicago, arrived this morning to spend new years with his sisters, the Misses Morton on Broadway.

"Attractions" of the Philippines.

An American in the Philippines, writing on business to a friend in Washington, incidentally sums up his impressions of our annexed territory thus: "The Philippine islands are a fierce proposition. I would not take Governor Taft's job, and you know how avaricious I am. Here are the attractions: Bugs, ants, lizards, mosquitoes, snakes, beriberi, leprosy, cholera, bubonic plague, fevers, dhot-bey itch, etc. Now is a month behind all the time. Ink costs a dollar (Mexican) for a half-pint bottle, but the man who stays here to sell it deserves the price. It is inconceivable to me how any white man can 'enjoy' Manila."

Only a Slight Difference.

There is not much difference between an epigram and an epitaph. An epigram says unkind and true things about the living; the epitaph says kind and untrue things about the dead.

Suffering

Will Not Help Your Disease, but Will Weaken Your Nerves.

Folk who think it is better to bear pain than soothe it—are wrong. Old-fashioned doctors used to say it was better, because they had nothing with which to ease pain but dangerous, heart-paralyzing drugs.

But now, that a safe remedy has been found, Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills, it is wrong to suffer, for nothing can be gained but weakened nerves.

A safe rule to remember is: When in pain, take an Anti-Pain Pill. This will soothe your suffering nerves. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills relieve pain by restoring the natural secretions, in which they differ from opium and similar narcotic drugs, which relieve pain by checking the action of the glands.

They are sure and harmless, and are the latest medical treatment for the cure of Headache, Neuralgia, Backache, Rheumatism, Dizziness, Toothache, Stomachache, Menstrual (Monthly) Pains, Also nerve irritations like Sea-Sickness, Car-Sickness, Sleeplessness, Indigestion, etc.

Pleasant to take, quick in results. "I have used Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills for sick, nervous headache, and have received the best results. I heartily recommend their curative properties, for they are successful."—REV. RAY A. WATKINS, D. D., Iowa City, Ia. Sold by druggists, at 25c. Money back if first box does not help. "Why not indeed?" exclaimed the reassured manager. "Success will come; it must come. You have seen Constance but once. She lives in every character to her heart's core. How does she do it? Who can tell? It's in-born—a heritage to her!"

His voice sank low with emotion. "Yes," he murmured, shaking his head thoughtfully as though another image arose in his mind. "A heritage, a divine heritage!" But soon he looked up. "She's a brave girl!" he said. "When times were dark she would always smile encouragingly, and in the light of her clear eyes I felt anew the Lord would temper the wind to the shorn lamb."

"One, two, three, four," rang the great clock through the silent hall, and at its harsh clangor Barnes started. "Bless my soul, the maids 'll be up and doing and find us here!" he exclaimed. "One last cup! To the success of the temperance drama!"

In a few moments they had parted for their respective chambers, and only the landlord was left downstairs. Now as he came from behind the bar, where he had been apparently dozing and secretly listening through the half-open door leading into the kitchen, he had much difficulty to restrain his laughter.

"That's a good one to tell Ezekiel," he muttered, turning out the lights and sweeping the ashes on the hearth to the back of the grate. "To the temperance drama!"

CHAPTER VI.

DOWN the hill, facing the tavern, the shadows of night were slowly withdrawn, ushering in the day of the players' leaving. A single tree at the very top, isolated from its sylvan neighbors, was bathed in the warm sunblaze, receiving the earliest benediction of day. Down, down came the dark shade, pursued by the light, until the entire slope of the hill was radiant and the sad colored foliage haunted in newborn gayety.

Returning from the stable, where he had been looking after his horse, the soldier stood for a moment before the inn, when a flower fell at his feet, and, glancing over his shoulder, he perceived Susan, who was leaning from her window. The venturesome rose, which had clambered as high as the second story, was gone, plucked, alas, by the wayward hand of a coquette. Saint-Prosper bowed and stooped for the aspiring but now hapless dower which lay in the dust.

"You have joined the chariot, I hear," said Susan.

"For the present," he replied. "And what parts will you play?" she continued, with smiling inquisitiveness.

"None."

"What a pity! You would make a handsome lover." Then she blushed. "Lud! What am I saying? Besides"—maliciously—"I believe you have eyes for some one else. But remember"—shaking her finger and with a coquettish turn of the head—"I am an actress and therefore vain. I must have the best part in the new piece. Don't forget that, or I'll not travel in the same chariot with you." And Susan disappeared.

"Ah, Kate," she said a moment later, "what a fine looking young man he is!"

"Who?" drawled her sister. "Mr. Saint-Prosper, of course."

"He is large enough," retorted Kate leisurely.

"Large enough! Oh, Kate, what a phlegmatic creature you are!"

"Fudge!" said the other as she left the chamber.

Entering the tavern, the soldier was met by the wiry old lady who bobbed into the breakfast room and explained the kind of part that fitted her like a glove, her prejudices being strong against modern plays.

"Give me dramas like 'Orlana,' 'The Rival Queens' or Webster's piece," she exclaimed, quoting with much fire for her years.

"We are only like dead walls or vaulted graves!"

"And do not forget the 'heavy' in your piece!" called out Hawkes across the table. "Something you can dig your teeth in!"

"Nor the 'juvenile lead,'" chimed in the Celtic Adonis.

"Adonis makes a great hit in a small part," laughed Kate, appearing at the door. "My lord, the carriage is waiting!"

"My lady, your tongue is too sharp!" exclaimed Adonis, nettled.

"And put in a love scene for Adonis and myself," she continued, lazily floating into the room. "He is so fond of me it would not be like acting!"

This bantering was at length interrupted by the appearance of the chariot and the property wagon at the front door, ready for the journey. The rumbling of the vehicles, the resounding hoofs and the resonant voice of the stable boy awakened the young lord of the manor in his chamber above. He stretched himself sleepily, awoke and again composed himself for slumber, when the noise of a property trunk thumping its way down the front stairs a step at a time galvanized him into life and consciousness.

"Has the world come to an end?" he muttered. "No; I remember. It's only the players taking their departure."

But, although he spoke carelessly, the bumping of boxes and slamming and banging of portable goods annoyed him more than he would confess. With the "crazy quilt," a patchwork of heptagons of different hues and patterns, around his shoulders, clothing him with all the colors of the rainbow, he sat up in bed, wincing at each concussion.

"I might as well get up," he exclaimed. "I'll see her once more—the perverse beauty!" And, tossing the kaleidoscope covering viciously from him, he began to dress.

Meanwhile, as the time for their going drew near, mine host downstairs sped the parting guest with good cheer, having fared profitably by the patronage the players had brought to the inn, but his daughter, Arabella, looked sad and pensive. How weary, fat and stale appeared her existence now! With a lump in her throat and a pang in her heart she recklessly wiped her eyes upon the best parlor curtains when Barnes mounted to the box, as robust a stage driver as ever extricated a coach from a quagmire. The team, playful through long confinement, tugged at the reins, and Sandy, who was at the bits, occasionally shot through space like an erratic meteor.

The manager was flourishing his whip impatiently when Constance and Susan appeared, the former in a traveling costume of blue silk, a paletot of dark cloth and, after the fashion of the day, a bonnet of satin and velvet. Susan was attired in a jupe sweeping and immensely full—to be in style!—and jacket with sleeves of the pagoda form. The party ascended in high spirits as from his dormer window Maurice, adjusting his attire, peered through the lattice over the edge of the moss grown roof and leaf clogged gutters and surveyed their preparations for departure. How well the rich color of her gown became the young girl! He had told himself white was her best adornment, but his opinion veered on the moment now, and he thought he had never seen her to better advantage, with the blue of her dress reappearing in the lighter shade above the dark paletot, in the lining of the bonnet and the bow of ribbons beneath her chin.

"On my word, but she looks handsome!" muttered the patron. "Might sit for a Gainsborough or a Reynolds! What dignity! What coldness! All except the eyes! How they can lighten! But there's that adventurer with her," as the figure of the soldier crossed the yard to the property wagon. "No getting rid of him until the last moment!" And he opened the shutters wider, listening and watching more closely.

"Are you going to ride in the property wagon?" he heard Saint-Prosper ask. "Yes; when I have a part to study sometimes retire to the stage throne—she answered lightly. "I suppose you will ride your horse?"

Often a person puts off taking needed tonic because of the disagreeable taste of most tonic preparations.

Therefore, the ideal tonic should be pleasant to the palate. Walther's Peppermint Port may justly claim the title of the ideal tonic, for in addition to being highly agreeable to the taste, it is a strengthener of greatest value, combining port wine, itself a tonic of noted efficacy, with peppermint which is nature's own digestive agent.

This preparation restores lost vitality and cures nervous prostration, indigestion and all kindred ailments.

Theatrical Notes.

The dramatized novel continues in the centre of the stage. There were more "book plays" than ever last season, and announcements indicate that this season will see many more stage versions of stories between covers. The popularity of the novel as a source of theatrical supply is natural enough. A play made from a widely read book starts with the initial velocity of adventures advertising. If the play is fairly good, financial success is practically assured. James K. Hackett kept two companies playing "The Crisis" to large audiences. "The Eternal City" is by no means the equal of its author's previous dramatization, "The Christian," but its prosperity doubtless will carry it into another season. Mrs. Fiske's "Mary of Magdala," must be reckoned a book play, although the Bible and not a novel furnished its inspiration and advertising. "David Harum" and "Ben Hur" continue to fill theatres, while "Quincy Adams Sawyer," most rural of novel plays, is being exploited by three companies, so great is the demand for it. With these and many other similar instances is it strange that scores of novel dramatizations are on the road this season? Charles Major's "Dorothy Vernon," Egerton Castle's "Bath Comedy" and the late Frank Norris' "The Pit" are now to be seen in dramatic form. Winston Churchill's early and almost forgotten novel, "The Celebrity," has been dug out for service. E. W. Hornung's "Amateur Cracksman" presents Kyrle Bellew as the fascinating raffles. One of Henry Harland's late successes has been staged, as has Mrs. Ward's "Lady Rose's Daughter." Dwight Tilton's "Miss Petticoats" has been dramatized by George T. Richardson for Kathryn Osterman.

"Mr. Bluebeard," which was being played at the Iroquois when it burned, is owned by Klaw & Erlanger, and is the 1903 spectacle on which they have expended the most money. In the company were 100 chorus girls and dancers, outside of the choromen and principals. The scenery was as lavish as money could buy and genius could paint, much of it having been used in the London production of the extravaganza. The extravaganza was adapted for the American stage by McAlley, of Boston, and J. Cheever Goodwin wrote the lyrics. In the music were interpolated a dozen songs by American composers. The song hits were "The Song Bird of Melody Lane," "In the Pale Moonlight," "Julie," "Shakespeare Was a Melancholy Dane."

The plot was a slight one, dealing with the adventures of Bluebeard and Fatima. The actors of the company were the same who were in the New York production, with the exception of Dan McAvoy. His place as Bluebeard in the Chicago production was taken by Harry Gifford, the old Hoyt comedian, animal imitator and trick whistler. The principal comedian was Eddy, who about twelve years ago made first hit in David Henderson's big spectacle of "Bluebeard, Jr."

Chicago is a hoodoo town for Klaw & Erlanger. Their big Rogers Brothers production burned out there in the Columbia theatre fire of three years ago, and the day before the Iroquois fire Jerome Sykes, their star in the "Bilhonnie," playing at the Iroquois, died.

In presenting this, their latest creation in minstrelsy, Messrs. Quinlan & Wall have in store for the public many new surprises and novel features, also a complete new scenic and lighting equipment and give to the public the only first class minstrel show in the world. Quinlan and Wall and their company of minstrel artists will be the attraction at the Kentucky Wednesday matinee and night.

"The Trolly" was presented last night to a small crowd at the Kentucky, and gave satisfaction. It is a play of strong interest and was capably put on in the cast was Mr. Andrew Forsythe, formerly a member of Manager English's summer stock company, and his friends were pleased to see him again.

This is the second season of uninterrupted success of that powerful play "The Convict's Daughter," which will appear at the Kentucky Monday night.

MR. FRANK FULTON LEARNS THAT NONE OF HIS PEOPLE WERE IN FIRE.

General Manager Frank J. Fulton, of the Paducah Cooperage company, this afternoon received a message from Chicago stating that none of his relatives were in the Iroquois fire. He feared that his sister-in-law, Miss Hutchinson, of Kansas, who has visited in Paducah and is very popular here, was in it, as he saw among the dead a Miss Hutchinson, of Waukegan, Ill., and thought the name and address in being reported, might have been inadvertently changed. He telegraphed and today received a message that none of his relatives were in the theatre.
